The New Mexico Difficulty.

Commissioner Bartlett has written a reply to Gov. Lane's proclamation, in which he controverts each point, seriatim, in order to show that the Governor is wholly mistaken in his positions. As the controversy is one of some interest, and likely to be of considerable importance before long, it may be well to state the substance of Mr. Bartlett's communication. First, he denies that New Mexico ever exercised jurisdiction over the Mecilla valley, as alleged, asserting that, on the contrary, ever since 1825. Chihuahua has claimed and exercised the jurisdiction of the territory. Secondly, he says that there are only 700, not 2,000, inhabitants in the disputed country, who are so far from desiring to be annexed to the United States, that when it was known the boundary determined by the commissioners included them in Mexico, they hailed the event with salvos of cannon and every kind of rejoicing. Thirdly, he volved in a series of fights, he received the swords of remarks that no force has ever been used by the State of Chihuahua to retain possession of her territory, although it is true that she has failed to "pro- ed in protecting the lives of his prisoners against his tect the inhabitants of the territory in question " own men: then engaged in hydrographic service on "against border Indian depredations," in the same the coast survey; then, as surgeon of the expedition manner that Texas and New Mexico have failed to in search of Sir John Franklin, spending a long and protect their people from similar depredations.
